NEW CHILDREN'S BOOK ENCOURAGES YOUNG READERS TO HELP THE NEEDY Charming Children's Book Donates Proceeds to Soles4Souls and Higher Ground Ministries

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE: According to the National Center for Children in Poverty, nearly 15 million children in the United States live below the poverty line. In her first children's book, Jazzy and the Dog Walk (Ambassador International; November 2012; $14.99, hardcover), Tica Tallent sheds light on the issue of child poverty in order to remind readers what it means to care for others.

Jasmine (aka Jazzy), a young girl, with a love of clothes, jewelry, and music, reminds readers of all ages the importance of giving back. After being troubled by a video in school showing young children who have no shoes, Jazzy is determined to do something. With the help of some furry friends and a miracle from a beautiful angel, Jazzy organizes a dog fashion show to raise money. "My hope is to inspire young readers to get involved in helping others," explains Tallent. "And I want to bring attention to two of my favorite charities at the same time." Following Jazzy's example, a portion of each sale of Jazzy and the Dog Walk will support Soles4Souls and Higher Ground Ministries.
